----- The keymacs of FontLoader Activation Code is a large collection of user-definable macros that allow you to load any font on your computer. It is useful for many applications, from Mac OS X to any other operating systems that use the PostScript font format (which includes Windows NT and Windows 95). The keymacs are organized into groups that are called collections. A collection is a named directory, that contains fonts, and a short description of what that collection is. The keymacs are organized so that you can easily select and load fonts with one command. You can load all the fonts in a collection at once by typing one command, or you can load all the fonts of a particular collection in one command. You can even use keymacs to load fonts from remote servers. FontLoader is under active development. I am currently working on a multilingual version of the utility. Collections -----

The heart of this program is a small, pop-up box that is displayed when you start the program. There you can select the folder that you want to use (Folders of this type are treated as special "fonts"), or you can click the button "Choose Random Folder" to use the folder in which the program is saved. After you have selected the folder that you want to use and clicked OK or OK, you will see a small window pop up with a variety of fonts that you can use to decorate the desktop or other windows. You can drag-and-drop fonts directly on the pop-up window, or you can drag the file icon of the font to the pop-up window and it will be opened automatically. There are numerous extra options you can access through this interface, such as whether you want to use a button to choose the folder, or a random selection. To use FontLoader just:- Open the folder of the program, preferably a special folder where you have only FontLoader or an empty folder (to keep the system clean). - In the start-up window you will see a small box where you can drag and drop any font that you want to use. - When you have finished using the program, press the button to exit the program. After starting the program for the first time, you may want to see if you can enter your own folder in the settings list. You can do so by clicking the little "..." button and selecting your own folder from the list. This list will appear only the first time that you start the program. After that it will always appear when you start the program. FAQ: What happens when I use the program? A window will pop up that you can use to select a font. You can use this window to drag and drop any font on your desktop, or you can just choose a random font by clicking the button "Choose Random Folder". If you start using the program, you will see a small window at the bottom of the screen. This window is called "FontLoader", and it contains a variety of fonts that you can use to decorate the desktop or any other program. How do I save my fonts? After you have used the program, and you have returned to the main window, you will see the save button to the right of the fonts list. If you click on it
